Esfuersonan pa atrae personal den enseñansa Y e reto pa haya docente necesario pa para dilanti klas

Scolnan na Aruba ta confronta un reto grandi. Algun scol di DPS, Directie Publieke Scholen mester di docente y simplemente no ta haya. Algun dia pasa DPS a pone anuncio pa solicita personal, pero no ta musta cu tin un solucion.

For di fuentenan, Bon Dia Aruba a compronde cu e problema a cuminsa na momento cu a baha e presupuesto pa cantidad di docente na DPS. Esaki a sosode durante Gabinete Wever Croes y e ex Minister di Enseñansa, dr. Rudy Lampe. E maneho e tempo tabata cu si un docente di DPS, sea a bolbe Hulanda of a bay traha na otro directiva di scol, no tabata reemplaza nan. Varios a laga DPS pa bay traha cu e iniciativanan Montessorie, Educampus y otro. Consecuentemente, e docentenan di DPS cu tabata encarga cu e funcion di e programa Prisma (enseñansa di Hulandes pa alumnonan stranhero) of tabata docentenan pa brinda guia special (begeleidingsleerkracht) mester a tuma e cargo di para dilanti klas. Esey tabatin como resultado cu hopi di e programanan di asistencia a haya problema cu continuacion. Hasta e programa di Interne Begeleider ta confronta reto pa falta di tempo, ya cu e IB'er hopi biaha mes tuma cargo di un klas.

Riba dje, a dicidi pa corta gasto riba reemplazante cu resultado cu e personal na e diferente scolnan di DPS ta traha kizas net cu e cantidad necesario pa tur e klasnan si tur cos ta cana regular, y algun hasta cu di menos. “Esnan encarga cu scol regularmente mester para dilanti klas pa falta di docente. E cuida di alumno ta bou presion y nos ta bek na 25 aña pasa,” ta locual a bisa Bon Dia Aruba.

E preocupacion ta e realidad cu docentenan ta gana mucho mas na Hulanda. E suma netto di un docente ta ricibi como salario na Hulanda ta hasta. Riba dje, hasta un scol manera De Schakel ta mas atractivo pasobra ta paga salarionan ekivalente cu Hulanda.

E falta di docente no ta limita na scol basico. Falta docente y como tal staff pa sostene e trabou. Scolnan a informa DPS di e situacion cu tin basta tempo andando caba. “Nos ta experiencia hopi ‘lesuitval,’” un fuente a bisa Bon Dia Aruba. “Nos tin hopi tempo ta raporta e problema aki.”

Enseñansa special

Otro reto ta enseñansa special. Bon Dia Aruba a compronde di por lo menos un scol cu a perde docentenan cu tin e preparacion pa enseñansa special. Nan partido ta basa riba diferente factor cu no ta unicamente salario pero tambe perspectiva pa nan propio yiunan. E aspecto dificil ta cu ta trata aki di un especialidad cu no tin hopi na Aruba y e realidad ta cu na Hulanda tambe tin necesidad pa e specialisacion aki, ademas di condicionnan laboral cu ta mas atractivo.

Segun minister Dangui Oduber...

Contratacion na AAA no ta bay di acuerdo cu corporate good governance

Durante weekend, riba medionan di comunicacion local a circula informacion tocante un supuesto ‘impasse’ entre minister di Turismo, Dangui Oduber, y CEO di Aruba Airport Authority, Joost Meijs pa motibo di contratacion di personal.

“Sindicato STA a manda dos carta expresando preocupacion di mas di 60 trahador pa e proceso di seleccion cu ta tumando lugar na AAA cu segun nan, no ta conforme corporate good governance”,

Oduber a declara pa Bon Dia Aruba. “Esaki di loke mi ta compronde di e cartanan ta cu personanan ta wordo tuma den servicio sin cu ta cumpli cu e rekisitonan [red: di e vacatura].”

Bon Dia Aruba a puntra Oduber si ta berdad cu tin ‘friccion’ entre su persona y Meijs. Oduber a splica cu for di tempo cu e CEO a duna 75 trahador na AAA nan retiro, siendo cu gobierno tabata subsidiando nan salario, ‘e relacion a sufri un deuk’. Esaki a bira pio tambe na momento cu a nota cu despues di a duna cantidad di hende retiro, awo e compania ta purba contrata otro hende.

“Awe nos ta constata cu e decision pa retira 75 mama y tata di famia tabata uno robes cu a costa e compania miyones”, Oduber a bisa. “Awe AAA ta habriendo vacatura tras vacatura y na aña 2021 e compania a haci mas di 20 miyon florin di ganashi. No tabatin ningun hustificacion pa ofrece paketenan na empleadonan. E tabata mas bien un decision cu por wordo yama na Hulandes: paniek voetballen!”

KvK tabatin e oportunidad pa delibera abiertamente riba e preocupacionnan di comercio y nos comunidad en general. Tambe a papia di e situacion financiero di Aruba y e pasonan cu mester wordo tuma pa Aruba por paga bek

e sosten financiero ricibi di Hulanda. KvK ta gradicido cu Hulanda a aporta pa Aruba y comercio.

Alabes a amplia riba e Landspakket y e estudionan andando. A pone enfasis riba e importancia pa tin un bon comunicacion y colaboracion entre stakeholders, Gobierno di Aruba y Hulanda, particularmente tocante e investigacionnan andando y e reportnan. KvK a participa den varios di e investigacionnan aki y ta en espera di e resulta-donan. Un otro tema cu a bin dilanti ta concerni e gastonan di Gobierno. Mester evita cu e diferente reformatan y restructuracionnan cu lo genera mas entrada pa Gobierno wordo destina pa aumenta su gastonan. Un condicion primordial di KvK ta cu reforma fiscal mester wordo compaña cu reduccion di e gastonan di Gobierno, incluyendo e gastonan di salario.

KvK a reuni cu VNO Relacion cu Hulanda ta duradero

Otro puntonan cu a wordo treci dilanti ta e introduccion di e sistema di BTW entrante

1 di januari 2023, e situacion social di Aruba, nos sistema di educacion y e necesidad pa motiva y crea oportunidad pa Arubianonan cu a studia den exterior bin traha na Aruba.

VNO y KvK ta desea cooperacion estrecho pa asina por intercambia informacion y conhuntamente por atende e preocupacionnan y puntonan di atencion comun y duna aporte na bienestar di Aruba en general y comercio.

E comision fiho pa Defensa di Tweede Kamer a lansa preguntanan y haci comentario na e Minister di Defensa pa e plan anual 2022 di Kustwacht pa Reino Hulandes den Caribe. E preguntanan tabata manda pa medio di e presidente di e comision de Roon.

E miembronan di fraccion di VVD a bisa di a tuma conocimiento di e maneho di personal, cu ta inclui reduccion den cierto departamento di Kustwacht y ampliacion di otro. Nan kier pa e Minister splica mas amplio con ta ekipa Kustwacht, como tambe e tumamento di personal den e paisnan Corsou, St. Maarten, Islanan BES y Aruba, como tambe na Hulanda.

Miembronan di VVD a tuma nota cu na 2021 a traha cu dronenan chikito pa ehecuta patruyanan tanto riba tera como riba lama, y ta puntra e Minister pa mira cu si den futuro tin tareanan pa e Reaper UAV's (drone grandi) pa sostene e trabao di Kustwacht pa brinda traficaion di droga.

Tambe e fraccion kier pa e Minister enfoca riba e fayon-nan di e Metal Shark y ta puntra si esakinan ta resultado di un determinacion di necesidad robes of pasobra e fabricante a haci fout den e manufacturacion.

Nan ta constata tambe cu Corsou ta bay cuminsa contribui entrante 2023 na e presupuesto di Kustwacht y ta puntra e Minister pa splica riba e discrepancia cu tin pa cu St. Maarten y Aruba cu si ta contribui na e presupuesto (red. Aruba ta contribui na presupuesto di Kustwacht desde su principio. Tabatin incidente unda Aruba a keda atras cu su contribucion cu a conduci na discusionnan fuerte entre Hulanda y Aruba. Entre otro, Hulanda a tuma posesion di e fondonan ora cu a bende e edificio di Plant NV, cu ta Marriott, y unicamente a debilbe Aruba parti di e placa ora cu a kita e gasto cu Aruba tabata debe pa presupuesto di Kustwacht).

Ademas, e miembronan di e fraccion di VVP a bisa cu nan a ripara cu segun e plan anual, dos di e total di 8 sistema di walradar lo keda reemplaza na 2022 y cu ta conclui e proceso aki. Pero nan ta lesa cu den e calculacion di inversion ainda ta tene cuenta cu un inversion te cu 2027 di 210 mil euro, mientras cu e sistema di radar pa e islanan St. Maarten, St. Eustatius y Saba ta specifica apart. Nan kier pa e Minister duna mas splicacion.

Miembronan di e fraccion di Volt di nan parti tin pregunta riba e papel di Hulanda den actividadnan di Kustwacht cu tin di haber cu intervencionnan haci na Corsou y e supuesto violacion di derechonan humano cu ta tuma luga na e pais. E gabinete Hulandes anterior, den un reaccion por escrito di parti di miembro Koekkoek di 14 di October 2021, a bisa cu na tur momento derechonan humano ta e fundamento di e trabao y cu nan mester keda respeta y proteha denter di Reino. E miembronan di e fraccion awor ta puntra e Gabinete Hulandes actual con ta para cu e combersacionnan entre Hulanda y Corsou, riba e forma con sosten di Hulanda pa migracion di Venezuela pa Corsou por continua y cua ta e resultado y mehoracionnan concreto. Tambe nan lo kier sa mas di e monitoreo y evaluacion di e eficacia y eficiencia di e sosten Hulandes y pa percura cu e tema di derecho humano ta bira parti di e agenda di e grupo di trabao encarga cu e combersacionnan aki. Segun e miembronan di fraccion di Volt, a tuma un pasahe comparativo riba proteccion di derechonan humano den e plan anual y cu e Minister ta indica cu Kustwacht na momento di ehecuta su trabao ta respeta e derechonan fundamental di hende. Sinembargo, pa Volt e ta keda poco claro con e proposicion di Kustwacht ta pa cumpli cu esaki. Pa tal motibo nan kier sa di ki forma a papia di derechonan humano y con ta inclui nan den e colaboracion di Kustwacht cu su partnernan.

E miembronan di fraccion ta puntra di con Gobierno Hulandes lo percura cu ta proteha e derechonan humano den e contribucion di Kustwacht y por ehempel, cua ta e medionan legal y proceduranan cu ta disponible pa personanan cu ta keda intercepta pa autoridadnan competente, por ehempel Kustwacht. Kier sa si ta informa e personanan intercepta di nan derechonan y cua ta e procedura y medionan cu nan por apela na dje.

Tambe Volt kier sa si Minister ta dispuesto pa laga haci un investigacion independiente riba e obligacionnan pa cumplimiento cu derechonan humano den e organisacion di Kustwacht. Den caso cu esaki no ta bay sosode, nan lo kier sa di con. Mas ainda, e miembronan di fraccion kier pa e Minister indica cua ta e cuadro di derechonan humano cu segun e ta conta y con leu e proceduranan y forma di traha di Kustwacht ta cumpli cu esakinan. Particularmente nan kier sa esaki relaciona cu e posibilidad cu hendenan cu ta busca proteccion pa por eherce nan derechonan. E fraccion ta bisa cu a lesa cu e plan anual di Kustwacht ta describi Venezolanonan irregular como ilegal, un termino cu segun e Oficina di e Comisario Halto pa Derechonan Humano OHCHR encabeza pa ex Presidente Chileno Michelle Bachelet, mester keda evita. No por usa palabra 'ilegal' ora ta trata di hende, ni den ley, maneho y practica segun OHCHR. Como tal, miembronan di Volt ta puntra e Minister di e ta di opinion cu mester evita di usa e termino 'ilegal' pa describi migrantenan di Venezuela den e region di Caribe y si ta bay cambia esaki den e maneho y practica di Kustwacht.

Parada Nacional di Luz 2022, yen di ambiente di carnaval

Diasabra anochi a tuma luga e Parada Nacional di Luz 2022 organisa pa Gobierno di Aruba hunto cu Departamento di Cultura. Despues di casi dos aña cu no tabatin actividad di carnaval, of di e magnitud aki, pa motibo di e pandemia, Gobierno a dicidi di organisa e parada aki como parti di nan exit strategy, como antesala pa celebracion di himno y bandera, y pa cende e mecha pa carnaval 2023.

Mirando e situacion actual y cu apenas luna pasa Aruba a sali di un di cinco ola di Covid cu a kibra varios record pa motibo di e variante Omicron, e anuncio di e parada aki a trece opinion mixto den comunidad. Pero a pesar di esaki, diasabra anochi e gruponan di carnaval a subi caya y mester remarca cu e ambiente di carnaval tabata presente y hopi ciudadano a sali pa presencia y disfruta e anochi.

E parada a cuminsa cu un discurso di Minister di Cultura y Finanzas, Xiomara Maduro, y Minister di Turismo y Salud Publico, Dangui Oduber, sigui pa un presentacion di e grupo RCC Aruba cu a representa Aruba na e Festival di Circo na Budapest y a logra tercer luga.

“E anochi a yega pa locual ta bira nos parada nacional di luz y p’esey awe den e colornan di nos bandera nos ta bay subi caminda cu e seis grupo di carnaval pa asina nos tin un momento pa nos celebra hunto locual cu ta di nos, pa hunto nos biba nos cultura”, Minister Maduro a expresa.

Durante su discurso el a gradici tur persona cu a traha pa e parada por ta posibel, Comision di Celebracion di Dianan Nacional, e grupo- y bandanan cu a participa y tur persona cu a Sali pa celebra y disfruta di e parada. “Danki pa boso presencia y nos ta cende e mecha oficial pasobra e parada aki ta pa cende e mecha pa carnaval 2023. Ban disfruta di locual cu ta di nos”, el a bisa.

Minister Oduber, durante su discurso, a expresa cu e ta sumamente contento cu nan por brinda Aruba un bunita celebracion di cultura. El a recorda cu e parada aki a wordo organisa pa celebra cultura, pa e musiconan, pa e entertainernan cu pa dos aña largo tabata tinele hopi dificil. “Esaki ta parti di nos exit strategy pa asina nos por brinda Aruba un bunita parada di nos celebracion cultural”, el a agrega.

El a gradici tambe tur grupo y banda musical cu a participa den e parada y a gradici Cuerpo Policial, Cuerpo di Ambulance, Rode Kruis tur e boluntarionan cu a yuda organisa e parada. “E expectativanan ta grandi, bo ta sinti e vibracion di positivismo, bo ta sinti e energia cu Aruba kier celebra un carnaval aña 2022 y awe noch nos ta brinda Aruba e oportunidad aki. Un biaha mas masha danki na tur esunnan cu a haci esaki un posibilidad y gosa na un manera sano awe noch y ban celebra manera semper Aruba a sa di celebra carnaval”, el a remarca.

Durante e parada Bon Dia Aruba a entrevista algun participante di e parada y a puntra nan opinion ariba e decision di Gobierno pa organisa un parada di carnaval den momentonan un poco sensibel y si tin preocupacion cu lo por tin un posibel brote di covid dentro di un of dos siman.

Sra. Esther, un carnavalista di curason pa hopi aña a bisa: “E ta sinti hopi dushi, bo no ta sinti manera e añanan a pasa, bo ta disfruta e momento y e momento ta grandi, e ta hopi dushi. Berdad hopi hende tin miedo, pero ami ta bisa bo miedo ta trece cosnan pa bo. Sea positivo y semper carga bo fe pa dilanti y bo ta sigui bay. Nan a tuma un decision, y di berdad e tabata temeroso, pero e ta bayendo bon. Mi ta spera cu tur hende rond disfruta, unda cu bo por ta semper ta safe pa bo mes y pa nos tur. Disfruta e momento pasobra awe nos t’e y nos no sa mañan”.

Otro participante, Sr. Giel, un comerciante chikito, a bisa cu e ta haya cu e decision di Gobierno di organisa e parada nacional di luz tabata hopi bon. “Nos ta laga henter mundo sa cu nos ta habri pa turismo y ora cu e turista bin entrada ta drenta y ta bay den tur hende su saco. Mi tambe ta un comerciante chikito cu ta traha den turismo y nos a haya sla duro. P’esey mi a cuida hopi, mi no a haya covid, pero awe nos tin cu celebra y laga mundo sa cu nos ta habri pa business”, el a bisa.

Ariba e pregunta si tin preocupacion cu lo por tin un brote di covid aki un for dos siman pa motibo di e parada, Sr. Giel a contesta: “Mi ta kere cu e no ta bay pasa, ban spera cu no y manera mi a bisa mi ta traha den turismo y e turistanan cu ta drenta mi ta papia cu nan tur dia y nos a haya informacion cu nan ta echt cuida y e hendenan cu ta bin Aruba ta e hendenan cu tin manera, e Americanonan cu tin e manera y ta paga pa haci nan testnan y nan ta bin”.

Sra. Tromp, otro participante y un carnavalista di hopi aña a splica cu den un principio e no tabata di participa, pero despues a cambia di opinion. “Door cu nos ta pasando den tanto cos y en realidad mi no tabata di bin, pero ora bo tende e musica di carnaval so y bo ta cuminsa baila y bo kier enjoy, bo ta corda e pasado y mi no por a keda afo”, el a bisa.

“Mi ta bin cu miedo, pero manera mi ta bisa bida tin cu sigui y mi ta bin den nomber di Dios cu tur cos ta bay bon y mi ta spera cu na Aruba nada erg lo bay pasa cu nos por sigui gosa”, el a agrega.

Ucrania ni Rusia...

Ta leu di nos porta...

Si nos a spera di por prospera den un ambiente internacional mas tranquil den e tempo nos dilanti, anto desde siman pasa nos sa mihor. Y esun cu ta kere ainda cu Ucrania y Rusia ta leu di nos, un “Ver van mijn bed-show” manera e Hulandesnan ta bisa, anto nan pensa un biaha mas. E paisnan ey por ta na mas di 10.000 km di nos isla, den e mundo globaliza den sentido economico esey a bira irrelevante.

Durante e pandemia nos a mira caba ki efecto evento global por tin riba tur economia, entre otro a traves di aumento drastico di costo di transporte. E hecho cu na e momento aki caba prijs di petroleo crudo ta riba US$ 100 pa bari, y ta completamente insigur pa cuanto tempo esey lo keda asina, ya ta un indicacion di kico nos por spera, como pais cu ta importa practicamente tur cos.

Esaki ta implica cu mester anticipa un aumento considerable di inflacion, considerando e factornan externo cu ta di influencia riba costo di mercancia yegando nos isla. Ademá prijs halto di producto di petroleo ta aumenta costo di bida tambe via e prijsnan interno. Tur cos cu ta move, ta costa energia, na un prijs mas halto. E situacion aki, cu efecto negativo pa poder di compra aki, ta surgi na un momento cu gobierno di Aruba mes ta den e obligacion di prepara e pasonan pa introduci un reforma fiscal entrante 1 di januari 2022, cu un BTW cu ta sustitui e actual BBO, cu lo ta percurando caba pa un efecto inflacionario na 2023. Di e manera aki e golpi pa e consumidor por ta bin di dos banda pareu. Esaki na su turno por tranca crecimiento economico, cu sector turistico ya recupera pa mayor parti, sin cu e demas sectornan a bolbe na nan nivel anterior, pasobra e nivel di poder di compra local no t'ey. Nos tin nos dilanti cinco, seis aña dificil, bao di e regimen di reforma acorda cu Hulanda. Un di e puntonan cardinal actualmente ta e promer encuentro y debatenan tocante e reforma fiscal. No ta trata solamente di e porcentahe di e BTW cu lo bin entrante otro aña, ki efecto e lo tin pa inflacion, sino tambe kico esaki lo genera na entrada. Segun e cifranan multi-anual, duna na CAft hunto cu presupuesto 2022, gobierno ta premira un aumento di casi 33% di impuesto indirecto, sin cu impuesto directo ta baha, al contrario. Si economia ta bay crece, den e escenario mas favorable, menos di 10%, anto gran parti di e aumento aki lo mester bin di aumento di presion riba cartera di empresa y ciudadano. Y esaki mientras cu e creciente gastonan di e aparato gubernamental, tanto pa personal y bienes y servicio, ta duna muestra cu gobierno ta nenga redondamente di baha gasto, envez di sikiera duna un gesto di compensacion pa e dolor cu e medidanan fiscal ta bay causa.

E guera na Ucrania den sentido politico tambe tin relevancia pa nos. Aruba ta parti di Reino Hulandes, cu ta forma parti di Union Europeo, bisña mas cerca di Rusia y parti di Organizacion di Tratado Nort Atlantico (NATO/NAVO), adversario logico di Rusia, di ambos banda propietario di arma nuclear. No a tarda mucho pa presidente Putin cumenza menaza cu uso di arma nuclear, especialmente mirando cu e invasion na Ucrania no ta avanzando cu e velocidad desea y e apoyo pa Ucrania cu a cumenza drenta di diferente pais di NATO. E relacionnan di amistad y enemistad di ambos banda tambe ta global. Nos bisña mas cercano, Venezuela, ta un amigo incondicional di e regimen Ruso, y den pasado reciente a ricibi armamento specializa di Rusia, entre otro equipo anti-aereo. Ademá desde 2017 e otro bisña, Colombia, a cera un acuerdo cu NATO, pa incorpora den e alianza como un socio extraordinario global, loke no ta e status di partner ordinario, cu ta reserva pa e paisnan di Union Europeo, Canada y Estadonan Uni. Cu tur esaki, nos tin un posible escenario di e confrontacion entre pais democratico y pais bao dictadura socialista banda di nos porta caba, y cu e situacion na Europa posiblemente escalando rapidamente.

Sin embargo, pa e islanan Hulandes cerca di Venezuela e peligro no ta solamente un conflicto arma entre e dos bisñanan, sino tambe un aumento drastico di represion gubernamental contra forzanan opositor, probechando di e situacion actual. Regimen di Nicolas Maduro tin varios aña ta rascando diente y tolerando un oposicion guia pa presidente di parlamento Juan Guaido den e pais, sin por actua contra nan, pa e miedo di e consecuenan for di Washington. Un aumento fuerte di represion por causa un exodo nobo di persona cu ta huy di Venezuela, cu lo tin consecuencia pa nos tambe den forma di yegada di mas persona cu ta busca refugio aki. Naturalmente nos tur ta spera cu esaki no sucede, pero no ta na nos pa dicidi esey.

Finalmente, tur e sucesonan aki lo por ta detrimental pa desaroyo general di nos pais, na un momento cu nos ta purba recupera di e crisis mas grandi di nos historia. A pasa hopi cos den ultimo añanan pero loke a keda un constante ta e afan gubernamental di sigui riba e caminda di aumenta entrada y continua gastando. Por keda tolera esaki?

Minister President Evelyn Wever-Croes:

Gobierno di Aruba tin tur atencion pa e conflicto na Ucrania

Prome Minister Evelyn Wever-Croes a dirigi su mes na pueblo di Aruba den un discurso nacional en bista di e invasion di Rusia den Ucrania. Consecuentemente Merca y Union Europeo a impone sancionnan riba Rusia haciendo esaki un conflicto internacional hopi complica.

Mundo ainda ta purba di recupera di COVID-19, y awor nos ta haya nos confronta cu esaki.

Apesar cu ta trata di un conflicto cu ta casi 10 mil kilometer leu, den e mundo global cu nos ta aden, conflictonan asina sin duda ta bay tin efectonan riba nos tambe.

P'esey mi ta dirigi mi mes na boso, pa di un banda nos tur ta alerta y prepara, y na otro banda, pa nos no bay den panico. E suseso aki ta un otro shock externo, cu nos no tin ningun influencia riba dje. Mescos cu Covid tambe tabata un shock externo cu nos no por a influencia, ni kico nos a haci, nos tabata sa cu e lo yega Aruba y afecta nos tambe. Asina e conflicto aki ta tambe, y nos mester prepara p'e mescos cu nos a prepara pa COVID. Nos a haci'e un biaha caba, nos por haci'e atrobe.

Ta importante pa bo sa cu Gobierno di Aruba ta haciendo tur lo posibel pa ta miho informa posibel di e situacion, pa asina por tuma e miho decisionnan pa nos pais y pa cada ciudadano. Pa asina nos por ta prepara pa mitiga e efectonan cu bin di e conflicto aki y sigura e seguridad nacional di nos pais.

Nos no ta mira cu e invasion di Rusia den Ucrania lo tin efecto directo riba Aruba awor, pero indudablemente nos tambe lo sinti e efectonan indirecto.

Kico asina nos por spera?

- Prijs di crudo a aumenta drasticamente, pasobra door di e conflicto y sancionnan economico severo, crudo a bira algo schaars, y e paisnan grandi ta uza nan poder riba e crudo pa influencia e conflicto. Pa nos esey kieren cu prijs di gasoline lo bay aumenta, y si e conflicto sigui pa mas tempo, hasta prijs di awa y coriente lo por aumenta cu tempo, door di e conflicto aki. Gobierno lo trata di mitiga esaki, mas tanto cu ta na nos alcanse, pero mester tene na consideracion cu nos poder financiero no ta hopi grandi ainda door di e efectonan di COVID.

- Nos ta vigila tambe ki efecto esaki tin riba nos turismo, dependiendo di ki posicion Merca tuma den esaki, por pone cu mericanonan lo pensa na pospone nan vacacion pa Aruba. Nos ta trahando caba, a traves di ATA, pa monitorea esaki y pa tuma decisionnan pa mitiga e efecto. Mientras tanto, ban nos cada un sigui trata nos bishitantenan cu cordialidad y amabilidad, pa asina nan sigui bishita nos.

- Otro efecto cu nos ta hopi alerta pe ta atakenan cibernetico, "cyber security", pa esaki nos tin un maneho caba y nos a bin ta preparando pa evita un calamidad. Nos a avisa tur empresa y instituto vital caba, y mi kier haci un apelacion na cada ciudadano pa ta extra alerta pa hacking di computer y celular, y pa tuma accionnan preventivo mesora. Empresanan mester educa empleadonan, update password, y sea extra alerta. Den e siguiente dianan nos lo duna mas informacion, conseho y tips simpel con abo por proteha bo mes contra atakenan cibernetico.

- Nos ta monitorea tambe e situacion na Venezuela, en bista cu Presidente Maduro a expresa su sosten na Rusia. Marina Hulandes ta extra alerta pa cu esaki, maske nos no ta premira problema riba e tereno aki.

- Inflacion indudablemente lo bira un problema pa henter mundo, y pa Aruba tambe, debi cu Aruba ta importa practicamente tur producto; consecuentemente nos ta importa inflacion di otro pais tambe. Esaki lo afecta nos debe nacional y e capacidad di pago di debe door di interes halto. Tur esaki ta pone cu nos lo mester ta mas economico, cambia nos habitonan di gasta placa, spaar awa y coriente, 'car pool' pa trabou of ora di hiba iuinan scol, biba mas saludable, talves planta mas, etc.

Esaki ta locual awor nos ta mirando pa Aruba. Ohala cu ningun di e retonan aki bira realidad, pero si en caso nan bira realidad, e ta importante pa nos ta prepara. Pa Gobierno ta prepara, pa nos sector comercial ta prepara, pa tur ciudadano prepara, pa henter Aruba ta prepara.

Apesar cu ta temponan dificil, mi ta para aki bo dilanti, un biaha mas, pa pidi bo pa NO bay den panico. Ban keda cu cabes friew pasobra si nos tur bay den panico, of nos bira negativo, ta problema y reto so nos ta wak.

Sigui noticianan internacional, pero no keda wak nan henter dia, pa e no deprimi bo; no bay tras di cada noticia cu sali, cu bo no sa si ta fake of no, no ta tur alerta ta aplicable pa Aruba. Gobierno lo duna update regular, di informacion relevante pa Aruba. Tene cuenta cu e situacion ta cambia lihe, y p'esey ta importante pa sigui noticia oficial di Gobierno.

Y ban purba wak tur cos desde un angulo positivo, pa asina nos mira solucion pa e problemanan y oportunidadnan nobo cada dia.

Mi ta sigura bo cu Gobierno tin tur atencion pa e conflicto aki. Tur nos instituto y autoridanan, Relacion Exterior di Hulanda, Marina Hulandes, Seguridad Nacional, NCTVI, ta trahando hunto pa monitoria y conseha Gobierno di e desaroyo pa asina garantisa e seguridad nacional di Aruba. Y nos ta traha hunto cu instituto y autoridanan den Reino Hulandes y internacional. Nos no ta nos so den esaki.

Mientras tanto, nos cu ta kere den e Ser Supremo, loke nos por haci ta uni den oracion. Oracion pa e pueblo di Ucrania cu ta bibando momentonan di terror y hopi angustia. Oracion pa sano huicio prevalece, y oracion pa un resolucion pacifico pronto.

Tecnologia por yuda lenguahenan den peliger di extincion manera Cherokee permanece bibo

Esaki ta e speransa di Hefe Richard Sneed, di Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians, ken ta contando riba un tecnologia mas inclusivo pa e consumidor, y compania di tecnologia grandi pa yuda.

Sneed y otro lidernan Cherokee a pasa varios luna ta consulta cu compania di Lenovo, Motorola, ken siman pasa a introduci e opcion di usa e smartphone den e idioma Cherokee den su linea mas nobo di telefon. Awo, usuarianan di e telefonnan aki lo por haci uso di aplicacion y ahustenan den e smartphone usando e forma skirbi di e lenguahe crea pa Cherokee Nation su Sequoyah den comienso di aña 1800. E lo aparece den e compania su telefonnan Edge Plus y nan lo subi mercado den e proximo temporada.

“E ta un piesa mas di un puzel grandi unda cu nos ta purbando di preserva e lenguahe aki,” Sneed a declara, ken a traha cu miembronan di su mesun tribu na North Carolina y otro lidernan di Cherokee cu ta papia diferente dialecto na Oklahoma, cu ta papia mas frecuente pero tambe ta den peliger di extincion.

Esaki no ta prome biaha cu tecnologia pa consumi a aprecia e lenguahe, mirando cu Apple, Microsoft y Google ya caba a haci cambianan pa duna e opcion di haci uso di nan laptop y celularnan den e idioma, pa asina nan por skibi den Cherokee tambe. Sinembargo e personanan haciendo e intento di preserva e lenguahe cu a traha riba e proyecto cu Motorola a bisa cu nan a purba di yena esaki cu e cultura, no solamente e simbolonan skirbi, cu nan ta purbando di proteha.

Por ehempel, e boton pa ‘start’ riba smartphone di motorola, awo tin un palabra den Cherokee cual ta nifica “djis cuminsa” ora cu traduci esaki. E ta un manera creativo pa incorpora e manera casual cu e welonan y welanan lo usa e frase den Cherokee, Benjamin Frey, miembro di Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians y profesor na University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill a expresa.

“E por a bisa ‘ban cuminsa’ den varios diferente manera,” Frey a bisa. “Pero e ta bisa ‘halenagwu’, nificando djis cuminsa. Y esaki ta algo hopi casual y usa den Cherokee. Mi por mira un di nos bieu nan ta bisa ‘well, ban djis haci esaki.’ E ta cordami di e manera cu nos grandinan ta papia, cual ta algo hopi bunita.”

Ultimo tempo den mercado internacional di petrolio por a nota aumentonan den prijs di productonan petrolero cu a afecta e prijs di gasolin y diesel na Aruba. prijsnan mundial mas halto tanto den productonan petrolero, transporte y otro tipo di productonan cu ta wordo importa. E subida di prijsnan den e sector di productonan petrolero lo traduci su mes den un aumento di prijs pa productonan petrolero local.

Many Capitol riot cases could hinge on 1st trial's outcome

(AP) — The Justice Department launched one of the largest and most complex criminal investigations in its history after a mob of Donald Trump supporters stormed the U.S. Capitol over a year ago. Now it's time for a jury to hear some of the government's evidence about the unparalleled attack on American democracy.

The first trial for one of the hundreds of Capitol riot prosecutions began this week, with jury selection starting Monday for the case against Guy Wesley Reffitt. The Texas man is charged with bringing a gun onto Capitol grounds, interfering with police officers guarding the building, and threatening his teenage children if they reported him to authorities.

Reffitt's trial could be a bellwether for many other Capitol riot cases. A conviction would give prosecutors more leverage in plea talks with rioters facing the most serious charges. An acquittal may lead others to wait for their own day in court.

Reffitt "truly is the canary in the coal mine," said Gregg Sofer, a former federal prosecutor who served as U.S. attorney for the Western District of Texas from October 2020 to February 2021.

"It'll really be interesting to see how strong a case the government has and whether or not they're relying on evidence that, when pushed and tested, stands up. It's going to have a huge impact going forward," added Sofer, now a partner at a law firm.

Reffitt is a member of a militia-style group called the "Texas Three Percenters," according to prosecutors. The Three Percenters militia movement refers to the myth that only 3% of Americans fought in the Revolutionary War against the British.

On Jan. 6, 2021, Reffitt was armed with a handgun in a holster on his waist, carrying zip-tie handcuffs and wearing body armor and a helmet equipped with a video camera when he and others charged at police officers on the west side of the Capitol, according to prosecutors.

"This action caused the police line guarding the building to retreat closer to the building itself; soon after this, law enforcement was overwhelmed, and rioters flooded the building," prosecutors wrote in a court filing.

Reffitt retreated only after an officer pepper sprayed him in the face, prosecutors said.

Prosecutors believe Reffitt took at least two firearms with him to Washington: an AR-15 rifle and a Smith & Wesson pistol. When FBI agents searched Reffitt's home in Wylie, Texas, they found a handgun in a holster on a nightstand in the defendant's bedroom. Prosecutors say photos and video of Reffitt during the riot show a handgun holster on his right hip, with what appears to be a silver object inside the holster.

On the morning of Jan. 6, Reffitt said he planned to "do the recon and then come back for weapons hot" and sent messages about meeting at a "rendezvous point," according to prosecutors.

"These messages, along with the weapons that Reffitt carried and the gear he wore, make clear that the defendant did not come to D.C. with the intention to engage in peaceful activity," prosecutors wrote.

The siege resulted in the deaths of five people, including a police officer. The Justice Department says more than 235 rioters have been charged with assaulting or impeding law enforcement, injuring over 100 officers. Rioters caused over $1 million in damage to the Capitol.

The Justice Department says its investigation has generated an unprecedented volume of evidence, with hundreds of thousands of documents and thousands of hours of videos to share with defense attorneys. Shared files total more than nine terabytes of information and would take over 100 days to view, the department says.

More than 750 people have been charged with federal crimes related to the riot. Over 200 of them have pleaded guilty, mostly to misdemeanors carrying a maximum sentence of six months' imprisonment. More than 100 riot defendants have been sentenced. And at least 90 others have trial dates this year.

Philadelphia-based defense attorney Justin Danilewitz, who was a federal prosecutor in New Jersey from 2012 to 2017, said a conviction in Reffitt's case may lead to a flurry of guilty pleas by other riot defendants.

"And that can benefit defendants on occasion because it's better than the alternative if the alternative is a conviction following a trial," Danilewitz added.

An acquittal could inspire other defendants to "dig in their heels" and either push for a better plea offer from prosecutors or gamble a trial of their own, he said.

Defense attorney William Welch has said there is no evidence that Reffitt damaged property, used force or physically harmed anybody. In a May 2021 court filing, Welch said none of the videos or photos shows a gun in Reffitt's possession at the Capitol.

High court to weigh limits to EPA efforts on climate change

(AP) — The Supreme Court is hearing a case its conservative majority could use to hobble Biden administration efforts to combat climate change.

The administration already is dealing with congressional refusal to enact the climate change proposals in President Joe Biden's Build Better Back plan.

Now the justices, in arguments Monday, are taking up an appeal from 19 mostly Republican-led states and coal companies over the Environmental Protection Agency's authority to limit carbon dioxide emissions from power plants.

The court took on the case even though there is no current EPA plan in place to deal with carbon output from power plants, a development that has alarmed environmental groups. They worry that the court could preemptively undermine whatever plan Biden's team develops to address power plant emissions. Biden has pledged to cut greenhouse gas emissions in half by the end of the decade.

A broad ruling by the court also could weaken regulatory efforts that extend well beyond the environment, including consumer protections, workplace safety and public health. Several conservative justices have criticized what they see as the unchecked power of federal agencies.

Those concerns were evident in the court's orders throwing out two Biden administration policies aimed at reducing the spread of COVID-19. Last summer, the court's 6-3 conservative majority ended a pause on evictions over unpaid rent. In January, the same six justices blocked a requirement that workers at large employers be vaccinated or test regularly and wear a mask on the job. West Virginia Attorney General Patrick Morrisey, speaking at a recent event in Washington, cast the power plant case as about who should make the rules. "Should it be unelected bureaucrats, or should it be the people's representatives in Congress?" Morrisey said. West Virginia is leading the states opposed to broad EPA authority.

But David Doniger, a climate change expert with the Natural Resources Defense Council, said the Supreme Court's consideration of the issue is premature, a view shared by the administration.

He said the administration's opponents are advancing "horror stories about extreme regulations the EPA may issue in the future. The EPA is writing a new rule on a clean slate."

The power plant case has a long and complicated history that begins with the Obama administration's Clean Power Plan. That plan would have required states to reduce emissions from the generation of electricity, mainly by shifting away from coal-fired plants.

But that plan never took effect. Acting in a lawsuit filed by West Virginia and others, the Supreme Court blocked it in 2016 by a 5-4 vote, with conservatives in the majority.

On cusp of Biden speech, a state of disunity, funk and peril

(AP) — In good times or bad, American presidents come to Congress with a diagnosis that hardly differs over the decades. In their State of the Union speeches, they declare “the state of our union is strong” or words very much like it.

President Joe Biden’s fellow Americans, though, have other ideas about the state they’re in and little hope his State of the Union address Tuesday night can turn anything around.

America’s strength is being sharply tested from within — and now from afar — as fate, overnight, made Biden a wartime president in someone else’s conflict, leading the West’s response to a Russian invasion of Ukraine that makes all the other problems worse.

The state of the union is disunity and division. It’s a state of exhaustion from the pandemic. It’s about feeling gouged at the grocery store and gas pump. It’s so low that some Americans, including prominent ones, are exalting Russian President Vladimir Putin in his attack on a democracy.

Measures of happiness have hit a bottom, with fewer Americans saying they are very happy in the 2021 General Social Survey than ever before in five decades of asking them.

This is what a grand funk

Biden will step up to the House speaker’s rostrum to address a nation in conflict with itself. The country is litigating how to keep kids safe and what to teach them, weary over orders to wear masks, bruised over an ignominious end to one war, in Afghanistan, and suddenly plenty worried about Russian expansionism. A speech designed to discuss the commonwealth will be delivered to a nation that is having increasing difficulty finding much of anything in common.

Even now, a large segment of the country still clings to the lie that the last election was stolen. Four decades ago, President Jimmy Carter confronted a national “crisis of confidence” in a speech describing a national malaise without using that word. But Vice President Kamala Harris did when she told an interviewer last month “there is a level of malaise” in this country. Today’s national psyche is one of fatigue and frustration — synonyms for the malaise of the 1970s. But the divides run deeper and solutions may be more elusive than the energy crisis, inflation and sense of drift of that time.

Take today’s climate of discourse. It’s “so cold,” said Rachel Hoopes, a charity executive in Des Moines, Iowa, who voted for Biden. “It’s hard to see how him talking to us can break through when so many people can’t talk to each other.”

It’s as if Americans need group therapy more than a set-piece speech to Congress. Yet in the immediate aftermath of Russia’s attack last week, a long-absent reflex kicked back in as members of Congress projected unity behind the president, at least for the moment, in the confrontation with Moscow. “We’re all together at this point,” Senate Minority Leader Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., said, “and we need to be together about what should be done.”

Politics didn’t stop at the water’s edge but it paused. Though not at Mar-a-Lago’s ocean edge in Florida, where Donald Trump praised Putin’s “savvy,” “genius” move against the country that entangled the defeated American president in his first impeachment trial.

White House officials acknowledge that the mood of the country is “sour,” but say they are also encouraged by data showing people’s lives are better off than a year ago. They say the national psyche is a “trailing indicator” and will improve with time.

Biden, in his speech, will highlight the improvements from a year ago — particularly on COVID and the economy — but also acknowledge that the job is not yet done, in recognition of the fact that many Americans don’t believe it.

A year into Biden’s presidency, polling indeed finds that he faces a critical and pessimistic public. Only 29% of Americans think the nation is on the right track, according to the February poll from The Associated Press-NORC Center for Public Affairs Research.

In December’s AP-NORC poll, most said economic conditions are poor and inflation has hit them on food and gas. After two years of a pandemic that has killed more than 920,000 in the U.S., majorities put masks back on and avoided travel and crowds in January in the sweep of the omicron variant. Now, finally, a sustained drop in infections appears to be underway.

Most Americans are vaccinated against COVID-19, but debates over masks and mandates have torn apart communities and families.

With Biden so hemmed in by hardened politics, it’s difficult to imagine a single speech altering the public’s perception, said Julia Helm, 52, a Republican county auditor from the suburbs west of Des Moines.

“He’s got a lot of stuff on his plate,” she said. “You know what could change how people feel? And pretty fast? What they pay at the pump. I hate to say it. But gas prices really are the barometer.”

Biden suggested last summer that high inflation was a temporary inconvenience. But it’s snowballed in recent months into a defining challenge of his presidency, alongside, now, the threat of geopolitical instability from Russia’s attack on its neighbor.

Consumer prices over the past 12 months jumped 7.5%, the highest since 1982, as many pay raises were swallowed up and dreams of home ownership or even a used car became prohibitively expensive.

New York to lift statewide school mask mandate by March 2

(AP) — New York’s statewide masking requirement in schools will be lifted by March 2, Gov. Kathy Hochul said Sunday, citing a dramatic drop in COVID-19 infections and new federal guidelines.

Hours later, New York City Mayor Eric Adams said he’s considering lifting vaccine mandates on restaurants, bars and theaters by early next week if infections and hospitalizations continue their downward trend.

A mask mandate on the city’s approximately 1 million schoolchildren could also be lifted, Adams said in a statement. The decision won’t come until Friday, following a full week of classes after students in the country’s largest school system return from a weeklong vacation, he said.

The pair of announcements signaled an important turning point for the city and state, once an epicenter of the global pandemic. New guidance from the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention says most Americans can now safely take a break from wearing masks, including students in schools. As of Saturday, state officials said the 7-day average for new cases was fewer than 1,671 for the first time since late July. Other metrics have also fallen rapidly, including hospitalizations and deaths. The CDC guidelines for other indoor spaces aren’t binding, meaning cities and institutions even in areas of low risk may set their own rules. Hochul said counties and cities could keep their own mandates in place, and parents could still choose to send their kids to school in masks. The new rules also apply to children 2 years and older in childcare facilities. Hochul said Adams was consulted before her announcement, including a conversation earlier Sunday.

Despite criticism over the state’s pandemic measures, Hochul said she remained resolute in sticking with experts and health data as her guide and “not let criticism and politics intervene in this decision-making.” Earlier this month, Hochul let a broad mask mandate for most indoor settings expire, but said the schools requirement would remain in place. She had promised to revisit the schools question by the first week of March.

The broad mask mandate was implemented during a COVID-19 surge fueled by the omicron variant in December. Masks are still required in some places, including public transit, homeless shelters, jails and prisons, adult care facilities and healthcare settings.

Ukraine, Russia envoys talk under shadow of nuclear threat

(AP) — Russian and Ukrainian officials met for talks Monday amid high hopes but low expectations for any diplomatic breakthrough, after Moscow ran into unexpectedly stiff resistance when it unleashed the biggest land war in Europe since World War II.

Outgunned Ukrainian forces managed to slow the Russian advance, and Western sanctions began to squeeze the Russian economy, but the Kremlin again raised the specter of nuclear war, reporting that its land, air and sea nuclear forces were on high alert following President Vladimir Putin's weekend order.

Stepping up his rhetoric, Putin denounced the U.S. and its allies as an "empire of lies."

A tense calm reigned in Kyiv, where people lined up to buy food, water and pet food after two nights trapped inside by a strict curfew, but social media video from Ukraine's second-largest city, Kharkiv, showed residential areas being shelled, with apartment buildings shaken by repeated, powerful blasts. Authorities in Kharkiv said at least seven people had been killed and dozens injured. They warned that casualties could be far higher.

The Russian military has denied targeting residential areas despite abundant evidence of shelling of homes, schools and hospitals.

Across the country, terrified families huddled overnight in shelters, basements or corridors.

The U.N. human rights chief said at least 102 civilians have been killed and hundreds wounded in more than four days of fighting — warning that figure is probably a vast undercount — and Ukraine's president said at least 16 children were among the dead.

More than a half-million people have fled the country since the invasion, another U.N. official said, with many of them going to Poland, Romania and Hungary. And millions have left their homes.

Still, a sliver of hope emerged as the first face-to-face talks between Ukrainian and Russian officials since the war began opened Monday. The delegations met at a long table with the blue-and-yellow Ukrainian flag on one side and the Russian tricolor on the other.

Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy's office said it would demand an immediate cease-fire and withdrawal of Russian troops.

But while Ukraine sent its defense minister and other top officials, the Russian delegation was led by Putin's adviser on culture — an unlikely envoy for ending the war and perhaps a sign of how seriously Moscow views the talks.

Also, the 193-nation U.N. General Assembly opened its first emergency session in decades in order to deal with the Ukraine invasion, with Assembly President Abdulla Shahid calling for an immediate cease-fire, maximum restraint by all parties and "a full return to diplomacy and dialogue."

Putin is not completely isolated and has talked to a series of heads of state in recent days, including a 90-minute call with French President Emmanuel Macron, who called for a truce. He has also spoken to the leaders of Israel, Armenia and other nations.

Meanwhile, Russia's Central Bank scrambled to shore up the tanking ruble, and the U.S. and European countries upped weapons shipments to Ukraine. While they hope to curb Putin's aggression, the measures also risked pushing an increasingly cornered Putin closer to the edge — and inflicted pain on ordinary Russians.

It wasn't immediately clear what Putin is seeking in the talks, or from the war itself, though Western officials believe he wants to overthrow Ukraine's government and replace it with a regime of his own, reviving Moscow's Cold War-era influence.

The Russian leader made a clear link between ever-tightening sanctions and his decision Sunday to raise Russia's nuclear posture. He also cited "aggressive statements" from NATO.

Moscow's Defense Ministry said that extra personnel were deployed to Russian nuclear forces and that the high alert applies to nuclear-capable intercontinental ballistic missiles, submarines and long-range bombers.

A senior U.S. defense official, speaking Monday on condition of anonymity, said the United States had yet to see any appreciable change in Russia's nuclear posture.

U.S. and British officials have played down Putin's nuclear threat as posturing. But for many, the move stirred up memories of the 1962 Cuban Missile Crisis and fears that the West could be drawn into direct conflict with Russia.

In addition to sanctions, the U.S. and Germany announced they will send Stinger missiles and other military supplies to Ukraine. The European Union — founded to ensure peace on the continent after World War II — is supplying lethal aid for the first time, including anti-tank weapons.

EU defense ministers were to meet Monday to discuss how to get the weaponry into Ukraine. A trainload of Czech equipment arrived Sunday and another was en route Monday, though blocking such shipments will clearly be a key Russian priority.

Europe welcomes Ukrainian refugees — others, less so

(AP) — They file into neighboring countries by the hundreds of thousands — refugees from Ukraine clutching children in one arm, belongings in the other. And they're being heartily welcomed, by leaders of countries like Poland, Hungary, Bulgaria, Moldova and Romania.

But while the hospitality has been applauded, it has also highlighted stark differences in treatment given to migrants and refugees from the Middle East and Africa, particularly Syrians who came in 2015. Some of the language from these leaders has been disturbing to them, and deeply hurtful.

"These are not the refugees we are used to... these people are Europeans," Bulgarian Prime Minister Kiril Petkov told journalists earlier this week, of the Ukrainians. "These people are intelligent, they are educated people. ... This is not the refugee wave we have been used to, people we were not sure about their identity, people with unclear pasts, who could have been even terrorists..."

Syrian journalist Okba Mohammad says that statement "mixes racism and Islamophobia."

Mohammad fled his hometown of Daraa in 2018. He now lives in Spain, and with other Syrian refugees founded the first bilingual magazine in Arabic and Spanish. He said he wasn't surprised by the remarks from Petkov and others.

Mohammad described a sense of déjà vu as he followed events in Ukraine. Like thousands of Ukrainians, he also had to shelter underground to protect himself from Russian bombs. He also struggled to board an overcrowded bus to flee his town. He also was separated from his family at the border.

"A refugee is a refugee, whether European, African or Asian," Mohammad said.

When it comes to Ukraine, the change in tone of some of Europe's most extreme anti-migration leaders has been striking — from "We aren't going to let anyone in" to "We're letting everyone in."

Those comments were made only three months apart by Hungarian Prime Minister Viktor Orban. In the first, in December, he was addressing migrants and refugees from the Middle East and Africa seeking to enter Europe via Hungary. In the second, this week, he was addressing people from Ukraine.

And it's not just politicians. Some journalists are also being criticized for how they are reporting on and describing Ukrainian refugees. "These are prosperous, middle-class people," an Al Jazeera English television presenter said. "These are not obviously refugees trying to get away from areas in the Middles East... in North Africa. They look like any European family that you would live next door to."

The channel issued an apology saying the comments were insensitive and irresponsible.

Mexico's efforts paltry in face of nearly 100,000 missing

(AP) — For the investigators, the human foot -- burned, but with some fabric still attached -- was the tipoff: Until recently, this squat, ruined house was a place where bodies were ripped apart and incinerated, where the remains of some of Mexico's missing multitudes were obliterated.

How many disappeared in this cartel "extermination site" on the outskirts of Nuevo Laredo, miles from the U.S. border? After six months of work, forensic technicians still don't dare offer an estimate. In a single room, the compacted, burnt human remains and debris were nearly 2 feet deep.

Uncounted bone fragments were spread across 75,000 square feet of desert scrubland. Twisted wires, apparently used to tie the victims, lie scattered amid the scrub.

Each day, technicians place what they find -- bones, buttons, earrings, scraps of clothing -- in paper bags labeled with their contents: "Zone E, Point 53, Quadrant I. Bone fragments exposed to fire."

They are sent off to the forensic lab in the state capital Ciudad Victoria, where boxes of paper bags wait their turn along with others. They will wait a long time; there are not enough resources and too many fragments, too many missing, too many dead.

At the Nuevo Laredo site -- to which The Associated Press was given access this month -- the insufficiency of investigations into Mexico's nearly 100,000 disappearances is painfully evident. There are 52,000 unidentified people in morgues and cemeteries, not counting places like this one, where the charred remains are measured only by weight.

Youtube video thumbnail
And people continue to disappear. And more remains are found.

"We take care of one case and 10 more arrive," said Oswaldo Salinas, head of the Tamaulipas state attorney general's identification team.

Meanwhile there is no progress in bringing the guilty to justice. According to recent data from Mexico's federal auditor, of more than 1,600 investigations into disappearances by authorities or cartels opened by the attorney general's office, none made it to the courts in 2020.

Still, the work goes on at Nuevo Laredo. If nothing else, there is the hope of helping even one family find closure, though that can take years.

That's why a forensic technician smiled amid the devastation on a recent day: She had found an unburnt tooth, a treasure that might offer DNA to make an identification possible.

The phenomenon of Mexico's disappearances exploded in 2006 when the government declared war on the drug cartels. For years, the government looked the other way as violence increased and families of the missing were forced to become detectives.

It wasn't until 2018 -- the end of the last administration -- that a law passed, laying the legal foundations for the government to establish the National Search Commission. There followed local commissions in every state; protocols that separated searches from investigations, and a temporary and independent body of national and international technical experts supported by the U.N. to help clear the backlog of unidentified remains.

The official total of the missing stands at 98,356. Even without the civil wars or military dictatorships that afflicted other Latin American countries, Mexico's disappeared are exceeded in the region only by war-torn Colombia. Unlike other countries, Mexico's challenge still has no end: authorities and families search for people who disappeared in the 1960s and those who went missing today.

President Andrés Manuel López Obrador's government was the first to recognize the extent of the problem, to talk of "extermination sites" and to mount effective searches.

But he also promised in 2019 that authorities would have all the resources they needed. The national commission, which was supposed to have 352 employees this year, still has just 89. And Macías' state commission has 22 positions budgeted, but has only filled a dozen slots. There the issue isn't money; the difficulty is finding applicants who pass background checks.

In Somaliland, COVID brings 'cutters' door to door for girls

(AP) — Safia Ibrahim's business was in trouble. COVID-19 had taken hold in Somaliland, in the Horn of Africa. The 50-year-old widow with 10 children to support set out door to door on the capital's outskirts, a razor at hand, taking advantage of the lockdown to seek work with a question: Have your daughters been cut?

Her business is female circumcision, learned at the age of 15, performed hundreds of times and now being passed along to her daughters. She congratulates young girls upon completing the procedure: "Pray for me, I've made you a woman now."

She believes her work keeps girls pure for marriage. "This is our Somali culture. Our great-grandmothers, grandfathers -- all of them used to practice," she said, even though she now knows there's no medical or even religious reason for the removal of external genitalia, which can cause excessive bleeding, problems with urination and childbirth, infections and even death. But it remains legal in Somaliland, so Ibrahim will continue until authorities tell her to stop.

Her story echoes through Muslim and other communities in a broad strip across Africa south of the Sahara, as well as some countries in Asia. In many places, COVID-19 brought stark challenges to efforts by health workers and activists to stop what they along with the United Nations and others call female genital mutilation.

Government officials, health workers and advocates say instances of FGM rose alarmingly during the pandemic in Somaliland and other parts of Africa as lockdowns kept girls out of school, making them vulnerable to "cutters" like Ibrahim, and economic pressures led impoverished parents to give their daughters in marriage, for which FGM often remains a cultural expectation, if not a demand.

In the early months of the pandemic, the U.N. Population Fund warned that disruptions to prevention programs could lead to 2 million cases over the next decade that otherwise might have been averted, and that progress toward the global goal of ending FGM by 2030 would be badly affected.

Hard data are lacking on the increase in FGM cases, but officials point to anecdotal evidence, local surveys and the observations of medical and advocacy groups. In Somaliland, an arid region that separated from Somalia three decades ago and seeks recognition as an independent country, community assessments by government workers and aid groups found that FGM rose during the six-month pandemic lockdown. Advocacy groups say they've also seen increases in Kenya, Tanzania, Sudan and Somalia.

Sadia Allin, Somalia director for the Plan International nongovernmental organization, said she was alarmed when an FGM practitioner came asking about her daughters in Somaliland's capital, Hargeisa.

"I asked her what she wanted to do with the girls. She said, 'I want to cut them,' and that was the shock of my life," Allin said. "I did not expect that something like that can happen in this age and time, because of the awareness and the work that we have been doing."

She said their survey found that 61% of residents of Hargeisa and Somaliland's second-largest city, Burao, believed that FGM was increasing under the lockdown.

Mothers give in and allow their girls to be cut, Allin said, "because the social pressure is greater than the pain."

After scathing report, NCAA makes changes for March Madness

(AP) - Nearly a year ago, Oregon forward Sedona Prince took to Twitter to expose some of the more glaring inequities between the men's and women's NCAA Tournaments — an unwelcome viral moment for the organization and one that it is still responding to.

The NCAA has made major changes to its women's basketball tournament. Many of the changes have been relatively easy to do, such as expanding the tournament to 68 teams and using the phrase "March Madness" — once limited to the men's tourney — in branding. "This year there will be numerous and notable enhancements to the championship," said Lynn Holzman, the NCAA vice president of women's basketball. "What those have translated to is an enhanced women's basketball student-athlete experience and fan experience."

"Making those changes is incredible and I hope it continues to be that way, and not just from a massive scandal, and a player exposing them on a national stage," she told The Associated Press. "Things shouldn't be fixed that way."

There is still a lot of work to do, such as TV rights and revenue disbursement, just two of the issues outlined in a blistering report released last summer that looked into the inequities. The differences between the two tournaments were stark.

The NCAA said it has made a major effort to make the two tournaments more equitable, on and off the court. While the organization wouldn't give an exact dollar amount, it did say it has spent millions more on the women's tournament this year, with the Final Four set for Minneapolis. The men's Final Four is in New Orleans.

"The zero-based budgeting exercise mentioned in the gender-equity report has been very detailed and time-consuming in a good way," said Dan Gavitt, the NCAA senior vice president of basketball. "We've taken every budget line for men's and women's basketball championships and compared and contrasted them. Where there have been discrepancies, we've had significant discussions about the equity stand point. In many cases, they've been adjusted to the tune of millions of dollars."

Starting in the regional rounds, which are played at neutral sites after earlier rounds are hosted by higher seeds, there will be "March Madness" logos on the courts instead of "Women's Basketball." The Final Four logos will be gender specific, too.

Other changes include; Gifts for each team will be the same. In previous years, while they were comparable in value, they were packaged and presented differently, fan events at the Women's Final Four have been expanded to be more similar to the men, including having an open practice the day before the championship game and officials are being paid the same at both tournaments.

The NCAA has plans for changes next year. They hope to move the selection show back to its Monday night slot after shifting it to Sunday this year, where there is the potential for it to get dwarfed by the men's show. The NCAA also hopes to have a neutral site for its opening round play-in games, similar to the men's event in Dayton, Ohio.

Three things that were brought to light last year by Prince's video and other social media posts were disparities in the lodging, food and weight rooms.

Organizers said most of those discrepancies occurred mostly because of the set-up of the tournaments, with both hosting every team in single cities amid the pandemic instead of at sites across the nation.

Still, the NCAA said it would ensure both tournaments will have equitable hotels and food this year.

Earlier this year, the NCAA announced it would not combine the two Final Fours, a recommendation from the Kaplan Hecker & Fink LLP report. There are other possibilities, including potentially moving one of the two to a different weekend.

Looming for the women's tourney is a full discussion — or new deal — for TV rights, the lifeblood for hundreds of schools. On the men's side, CBS and Turner's original contract with the NCAA was for 14 years at $10.8 billion ($770 million per year). They signed an eight-year extension in 2016 that gives them the rights through 2032, and the per-year average will jump to $1.1 billion beginning in 2025.

Currently, the women's tournament is bundled with other championships when it comes to TV rights, and many wonder how much money it could fetch if it stood alone in negotiations. The current contract with ESPN is not up until 2024.

Giving women's teams revenue for winning games in the tournament — which would be similar to the men's tourney — is a topic that has not been explored.

"If you get more money when your men win than when your women are winning, then you have to care more about the men winning," said North Carolina coach Courtney Banghart, the vice president of the Women's Basketball Coaching Association. "It's just financial optics things. Right?"

Augusta on his mind: Straka rallies to win the Honda Classic

(AP) — Sepp Straka is going back to Georgia in a few weeks. He's headed to his first Masters, after pulling off a huge comeback to win the Honda Classic.

Straka, down by five shots entering the final round, tapped in for birdie in the rain on the final hole and ended up beating Shane Lowry by one shot to become the first Austrian winner in PGA Tour history. He shot a 4-under 66 on Sunday to finish at 10 under and earn $1.44 million.

"The words aren't really coming to me right now," Straka said. "It's just crazy. I really don't know what to think."

He sure knew how to play.

A first-round 71 was followed by a 64 on Friday, 69 on Saturday and then then 66 on Sunday. He was 4 under in his final 10 holes, 3 under over the final five, finishing with a flourish while most others sputtered.

"It's hard to win out here," Lowry said. "It's just hard. End of story. There is no point saying any different."

Lowry shot his third consecutive round of 67, finishing the week 9 under. First-round leader Kurt Kitayama (68) was alone in third at 8 under, and Daniel Berger — who led by six shots with 19 holes left in the tournament — simply fell apart Sunday, his round of 74 leaving him 7 under for the week and three shots behind Straka.

"Just a poor round," Berger said. "It can happen at any time. I'm not going to dwell on it too much. Just didn't hit quality shots at the right time. Probably would've had a chance to win if I made a few more putts. I don't think I made a single putt today."

He didn't. Berger made two birdies Sunday — both chip-ins, one from the sand, one from a grassy slope.

Olympic body calls for Russia to be excluded from sports

(AP) — In a sweeping move to isolate and condemn Russia after invading Ukraine, the International Olympic Committee urged sports bodies on Monday to exclude the country's athletes and officials from international events.

The IOC said it was needed to "protect the integrity of global sports competitions and for the safety of all the participants."

The decision opened the way for FIFA, the governing body of soccer, to exclude Russia from a World Cup qualifying playoff match on March 24. Poland has refused to play the scheduled game against Russia.

The Olympic body's call also applied to athletes and officials from Belarus, which has abetted Russia's invasion by allowing its territory to be used to station troops and launch military attacks.

The IOC said it acted "with a heavy heart" but the impact of war on Ukrainian sports outweighed the potential damage done to athletes from Russia and Belarus.

It was not a total blanket ban by the IOC. Where exclusion was "not possible on short notice for organizational or legal reasons," then teams from Russia and Belarus should compete as neutral athletes with no national flag, anthem or symbols, including at the upcoming Winter Paralympics in Beijing.

The IOC also withdrew the Olympic Order it gave Vladimir Putin in 2001, and other Russian officials since.

Sports bodies across Europe had already moved against Russia on Monday by refusing to host or play against teams from the country.

Finland wants the Russian hockey team to be banned from the men's world championships it will host in May, the Swiss soccer federation said its women's team will not play Russia in July at the European Championship, and German soccer club Schalke said it had decided to end its longstanding partnership with Russian state-owned energy giant Gazprom.

FIFA declined to ban Russia from the World Cup over the weekend. Instead, the soccer body said the country's national team will have to compete as Football Union of Russia as punishment. Besides Poland, both Sweden and the Czech Republic, Russia's next potential opponents, have said they would refuse to take the field against them.

"The Swedish Football Association is disappointed with FIFA's decision but is determined to continue to work together with other federations to cancel Russia's matches in the upcoming World Cup qualifiers," the body said Monday, citing the "illegal and deeply unjust invasion of Ukraine."

The World Cup is scheduled to begin on Nov. 21 in Qatar.

In European club soccer, Russian team Spartak Moscow is still scheduled to play next week in the Europa League against German club Leipzig. European governing body UEFA allowed Spartak to take its place in the round of 16 draw on Friday, one day after Putin ordered the invasion to start.

UEFA called a meeting of its executive committee for later Monday and is expected to exclude Russian teams from its competitions based on the IOC's announcement.

There is precedent for removing Russian teams from sports. In 1992, following United Nations sanctions, FIFA and UEFA expelled Yugoslavia from its competitions when war broke out in the Balkans.

Besides Schalke's effort to drop Gazprom as a partner, UEFA is also expected to see if it can nullify its sponsorship deals with the company. Gazprom sponsors both the Champions League and the European Championship.

FIFA has attracted the most criticism among sports bodies for allowing Russia to continue competing, at least for now, in the World Cup qualifying playoffs. It has kept open the option of a ban.

FIFA attempted to compromise by ordering Russia to play at neutral venues without its flag and anthem and under the name of its federation — the Football Union of Russia.

That aligns with sanctions imposed by the Court of Arbitration for Sport in December 2020 to punish Russia for state-backed doping and cover-ups of cheating, and applied at last year's Tokyo Olympics and this year's Winter Games in Beijing.

The Russian soccer team was already due to play under those conditions if they qualified for the World Cup because of the doping scandals. FIFA's decision to apply the conditions to a regional sports event — European qualification games — is the only element of punishment for the war.

If Russia were to play Poland as scheduled on March 24 and win, the team would then face either Sweden or the Czech Republic on March 29.

Swedish soccer federation president Karl-Erik Nilsson, who is also the senior vice president at UEFA, said Sunday he expected a "sharper stance" from FIFA.

Polish soccer federation president Cezary Kulesza said Sunday it was "totally unacceptable" that FIFA had not immediately expelled Russia from World Cup qualifying and said Poland is "not interested in participating in this game of appearances."

Another of Russia's future opponents, Albania, also said Sunday it would not play against that country in any sports. Russia and Albania are scheduled to meet twice in June in the UEFA Nations League soccer tournament. The group also includes Iceland and Israel.

In hockey, the sport's governing body has come under pressure from Finland and Switzerland to ban Russia and Belarus, which are both due to play at the world championships in May in Helsinki and Tampere.

Finnish Hockey Association chairman Harri Nummela said in a statement Monday it had talks with the Zurich-based IIHF to exclude the two countries from the sport internationally.

Larson holds off Dillon, Suarez for NASCAR win at Fontana

(AP) — Even after Kyle Larson's dominant finish to 2021, he entered the new NASCAR Cup Series season full of uncertainty.

"Going into a new car, you just don't know if you're going to win or not," he said.

Just two races into the new year in the new car, Larson no longer has to wonder — although his path to victory included a fateful collision with furious teammate Chase Elliott on a wild day at Fontana.

The defending NASCAR Cup Series champion held off Austin Dillon and Daniel Suarez in a tense finish Sunday, surviving a restart with four laps left to win at Auto Club Speedway for the second time.

Before the chaotic finish, Larson and Elliott made contact with just under 20 laps to go, with Larson pinching his Hendrick Motorsports teammate into the wall while he fought to stay in front of Joey Logano. Larson apologized for the collision over the radio, saying he hadn't seen Elliott making a bold move to get past him — but Elliott, who finished 26th, and his team were decidedly displeased.

Larson then had victory in sight with eight laps to go when Elliott spun, forcing a race-record 12th caution. NASCAR fans went wild with online speculation that Elliott's spin was a deliberate attempt to hurt Larson's chances to win. Larson and crew chief Cliff Daniels dismissed that notion, and they believe there won't be long-term damage to their Hendrick relationship. "I know we're all great teammates together," Daniels said. "I know it's nothing they would ever do intentionally. I don't blame Chase at all for making what could have been the race-winning move (earlier). ... Unfortunate, but I know we're all going to get on the same page."

The brouhaha with Elliott colored another superb race for Larson, who surprisingly hadn't won any races anywhere yet in 2022. After starting at the rear under penalty, the relentless multi-disciplinary competitor and Northern California native roared to another win at Fontana in an entertaining race featuring ample passing, plenty of mistakes and thrilling top-to-bottom moves on the seasoned five-wide asphalt.

Larson made it out of the pits first after the final caution, and he led off the final restart. He was neck-and-neck with Suarez, who briefly got in front with two laps left before Dillon got into the draft to take his own shot at the leader.
